Astronauts' families thrill to blast off

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — The room, full of chatter moments before, was hushed as the voice of Mission Control counted: "Six ... five ... four ... we have ignition."

Eleven-year-old Suzanne Schirra, who stayed home from school to watch her father shoot into space for the third time, couldn't hold back any more. She jumped up and clapped her hands in joy.

(Local story on page 14)

"Beautiful. Gorgeous," murmured her mother, Mrs. Walter M. Schirra Jr., wife of the Navy captain who is commanding Apollo 7. A few blocks away, at the home of Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele, 4-year-old Jon J. Eisele pointed to the picture of the Saturn rocket on the television screen and said "that's where daddy is." As the rocket lifted off the pad, tears welled in his mother's eyes.

That's how it was at home—within a few miles of the Manned Spacecraft Center—as Schirra, Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham began the mission that sets the United States on the most ambitious space venture of all.

Cunningham's wife and their two children went to Cape Kennedy, Fla. for the launch.

Friends gathered early in the Schirra and Eisele homes.

Mrs. Donald Slayton, wife of the director of flight crew operations, spent the night and then made breakfast at the Schirra household.

Critical maneuvers successful

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — Three excited Apollo 7 astronauts flashed into space Friday, whipped through critical maneuvers and set up housekeeping in the first test of whether America's newest, biggest spaceship has the stamina to carry men to the moon.

"We're having a ball," reported veteran Command Pilot Walter M. Schirra Jr. as he guided Apollo through the first of its 11-day voyage 163 times around the earth.

He took time out for a hot cup of coffee and grabbed a quick lunch with his two co-pilots, Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham, each making his first space trip.

"It's a fantastic world up here," one of them exclaimed.

At about 6:30 p.m., Mission Control asked, "Does the spacecraft look good for 18 revs?"

Schirra answered loud and clear, "Eighteen revolutions a day."

About nine hours into the flight and some 15 hours after their day began, Schirra reported Eisele was "attempting to settle down for a long winter's night." He was to sleep for seven hours, then Schirra and Cunningham were to sleep for a like period while Eisele took the controls.

The flight, quickly settling down into a routine, began with a wild ride aboard the most powerful rocket man has ever ridden.

It came near the end of a day that started with a wild ride aboard the most powerful rocket man has ever ridden.

Their hearts racing, the trio blasted off from Cape Kennedy, Fla. at 11:03 a.m. (EDT) with their Saturn IB rocket pouring out the furious power of more than a million pounds of blazing fuel.

90th Congress adjourns with courage, defiance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Absenteeism in the House blocked final adjournment of Congress Friday night, forcing it to return today in hopes of quitting then until Jan. 3.

Both the Senate and the House had completed all the business on the legislative agenda and the Senate had adopted a resolution calling for final adjournment at the end of the Friday session. The Senate then recessed hoping that the House would adopt the resolution and end the session.

But too many House members had scurried homeward after a 213 to 6 vote passed the $71.8 billion defense appropriation bill. Many of them, seeking re-election, were determined to keep weekend speaking engagements.

Senate approval of the defense appropriation, the largest single spending bill in history, quickly followed House passage.

The House couldn't act on the Senate's adjournment resolution because a quorum of 217 members is required to transact business.

Only 188 members were officially accounted for and after a two-hour delay while trying to track down absentees, the House leadership decided to call it quits and return today.

The members have three weeks for campaigning before the Nov. 5 elections in which all 435 House seats and 34 of the 100 Senate seats will be filled.

The session which started last Jan. 15 and was interrupted by several recesses was marked by some rare happenings.

Perhaps President Johnson's most galling reversal of the year was the Senate's refusal to consider his nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice. A Republican-Southern Democratic filibuster caused the President to reluctantly withdraw the nomination.

Tobyhanna Village repairs problem

(Record Washington Bureau)

WASHINGTON — The Federal Housing Administration has called upon Dr. Gabriel Elias, owner and manager of the Tobyhanna Village Project, to correct housing deficiencies that have caused a revolt of residents in Tobyhanna.

A spokesman for the Administration said here Friday that FHA officials had talked to Elias and suggested several alternative ways to finance the cost of necessary repairs.

He said there was "some money available" for repairs since Elias was obliged to put aside a certain sum in what is known as a "replacement reserve."

The spokesman explained that a certain percentage of the owner's income from the project had to go into the reserve. He did not know what the precise percentage was and would not say how much was presently in the reserve.

He did say, however, that the amount currently in the replacement reserve seemed "adequate" to make the necessary repairs.

The Administration can apparently oblige him to set aside a certain percentage of his income in the replacement fund but cannot force him to spend it.

"Our ultimate weapon is to refuse to do any more business with the man or corporation," he said.

Soviets ship intellectuals into exile

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviet intellectuals were sentenced Friday to relatively light terms in exile from Moscow and two others were sent to labor camps for staging a public protest in Red Square against the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

After three days of testimony laced with denunciations of the invasion, the five were convicted of disturbing public order and slandering the Soviet Union. They had been arrested after demonstrating for about three minutes Aug. 25.

The organizers—Pavel Litvinov, grandson of Stalin's foreign minister, and Mrs. Larisa Daniel, wife of an imprisoned writer—were banished from Moscow for five and four years respectively. Konstantin Babitsky, a specialist in the history of the Russian language, was exiled for three years.

President does business in Missouri

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — President Johnson spanned half the continent Friday for a tripleheader ceremony honoring the United Nations and President Harry S. Truman's part in founding and supporting it unflinchingly.

Only hours after Congress made it all possible, Johnson flew from Washington to Kansas City and motored to the Truman Victorian mansion to:

—Sign a bill Congress passed Friday asking him to proclaim Oct. 24 as United Nations day, the 23rd anniversary of the day the U. N. charter went into effect.

—Follow through by issuing and signing this proclamation and a companion one calling on all citizens "to give special recognition to the significant part which Harry S. Truman played in the creation of the United Nations."

The FHA spokesman said he could not read clearly the name of the last bidder but believed it was Melvin Solomon.

The minimum bid set by the FHA on the project was $425,000.

Humphrey fights flu, cuts trip

Would pay debate tab for rivals

NEW YORK (AP) — The Democratic team of Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie sought to put heat on frontrunner Richard M. Nixon Friday by offering to guarantee the cost of televised debates—and charging he is afraid of a face-to-face confrontation.

Humphrey, appearing at a morning news conference, said that they had opened negotiations with a television network for an hour of time Sunday night, Oct. 20, for a three-way debate among Humphrey, Nixon and George C. Wallace, the third-party candidate.

Humphrey, with his running mate Muskie at his side, made the offer one day after Senate Republicans blocked legislation that would have changed the equal time regulations to permit free televised debates like those between the late John F. Kennedy and Nixon in 1960.

Both Thursday night and Friday Humphrey complained of stomach trouble and told newsmen that he had been suffering from "stomach flu" and that although he felt "a little weak," he was better.

However, shortly after the news conference aides announced that a scheduled trip to Cincinnati had been cancelled and that the vice president was in bed. Norman Sherman, a press aide, described the ailment as "a mild case of the flu."

"At first glance," Humphrey said of the Senate action on the equal time rule, "this appears to have denied the American public the chance for a face to face debate among the contenders for the presidency and the vice presidency."

But Humphrey said that he and Muskie decided to "guarantee the cost of the debates" and at the same time "we are asking Democrats, Republicans and independents" to send in donations to help pay for them. "Naturally, we hope that Mr. Nixon and Mr. Wallace will agree to share the cost of the debates," Humphrey added. But he said that if they would not, he and Muskie were prepared to pay the entire cost with the help of donations from "those Americans who want to see and hear discussions of the vital issues of the campaign."

So far, Nixon has declined repeated invitations and challenges from Humphrey to enter a series of debates.

Muskie said that Nixon is "afraid that a debate might cost him his lead."

"A man who is sure of himself, sure of his potential of leadership, sure of his position on issues need not be afraid," Muskie added.

Humphrey proposed that Nixon and Wallace appear with him in two debates and that their running mates—Maryland Gov. Spiro Agnew and retired Air Force Gen. Curtis LeMay—face Muskie in a third debate.

"We do not intend to allow our opposition to evade a direct face to face discussion of the vital issues including Vietnam, the arms race, civil order and human rights," Humphrey said.

In Humphrey's prepared Cincinnati speech, read for him by Rep. John J. Gilligan, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, the vice president said "I am going to smoke Dick Nixon out," and he added:

"I want them to stand up, man to man, and tell the American people what they believe."

"And I am going to send up smoke signals, get people to sign petitions, send letters, and keep banging away until I get them on that platform."

Carpenter needs heart, will travel

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 42-year-old carpenter, denied a heart transplant at Hahnemann Medical Hospital here almost at the last minute Sept. 25, will fly to Houston, Tex. for the operation.

The decision was made late Thursday after Dr. Edward B. Diethrich of Houston Methodist Hospital examined Emilio Capobianco. Diethrich said Capobianco was a good candidate for the operation.

Diethrich said members of the Methodist transplant team, which includes famed surgeon Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, were scattered around the country attending meetings. They would be back in Houston by midweek when Capobianco should arrive in a commercial jet, Diethrich said.

Nixon vows swift repeal of 10 per cent surtax

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon said Friday that the 10 per cent federal income surtax is a war tax which "must be repealed" as soon as possible.

The Republican presidential nominee did not say when that would be.

Unless it is extended by Congress, the surtax will expire June 30.

The big show of Nixon's campaign for the 25 Texas electoral votes was an hour-long live television program Friday night carried by a hookup of 26 stations across the state and in Arkansas.

His major personal appearance was a rally at Southern Methodist University which drew an overflow crowd of more than 10,000, most of them students.

At the rally, Nixon said there is "a big D" in the race for the White House. "The big difference between the candidates."

He accused Humphrey of having "a spending spree" record. Nixon said he would, as president, cut federal spending.

"One candidate says the 10 per cent surtax is here to stay," Nixon said in a statement issued in Dallas. "I say, this tax is a war tax and as soon as possible must be repealed."

In his rally speech, Nixon said nothing about the third candidate for president, George C. Wallace. He concentrated on Humphrey and said the Democrat is "shackled to the mistakes of the past."

Nixon suggested that the men serving in President Johnson's administration would turn up in a Humphrey team, asserting that the nation needs new policies and leaders to deal with crime.

Nixon said Humphrey would continue the policies of the past four years "and probably those men."

Nixon also: —Made public a telegram he sent Thursday to the crew of the Apollo 7 space ship. "The example you set challenges all of your countrymen to support a space effort that will extend the boundaries of science and uplift the American spirit of adventure and exploration," he said.

—Issued a statement blaming Democratic policies for the woes of the cattle industry. He said the volume of beef imports this year may be the second greatest in history. "Loopholes in the present law must be closed so that domestic cattle producers can participate on a fair basis in the growth of the domestic market," Nixon said.

—Had his political director accuse Humphrey of seeking national television debates in an effort to promote Wallace and deadlock the election.

"However, they have clung to the main hope that they could generate enough electoral college votes for Wallace to throw the election into the House of Representatives," Ellsworth said.

'Intestinal flu' sends him to bed

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, feeling weak and "kind of miserable" from what his doctor said was "intestinal flu" called off a campaign trip to Cincinnati Friday and took to his bed to rest for a major speech Saturday night.

The Democratic presidential nominee became ill during the day Thursday but completed his schedule, telling a Queens County Democratic dinner that night, he had "a stomach ache." The Cincinnati trip was cancelled at mid-morning Friday.

"He just feels achy and dragged out," Dr. Edgar Berman, the vice president's personal physician, told reporters.

With two speeches including one at an outdoor street rally on his schedule, "it would have been a tremendous day in Cincinnati," the doctor said, emphasizing that, "he's not incapacitated in any way except that he feels lousy."

Throughout the campaign, Dr. Berman has described Humphrey's general physical condition as excellent.

Enemy escapes, leaves weapons

SAIGON (AP) — In a battle that swept through rice paddies and thick hedgerows, U.S. troops tried to trap 300 enemy troops on the northwest invasion corridor to Saigon Friday but most escaped. The Americans, however, captured another big weapons cache.

The battle broke out Thursday when 400 U.S. 25th Division infantrymen came under heavy fire from enemy troops dug in among the hedgerows near Trang Bang, 27 miles northwest of Saigon.

About 600 U.S. reinforcements were flown in and attempted to throw a cordon around the enemy as fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and artillery hammered the hedgerows.

Fighting flared through the night but when U.S. infantrymen drove forward at dawn they met only small rear guard action. A sweep of the field turned up 26 enemy bodies. U.S. casualties were six killed and 16 wounded.

The Americans were part of a blocking force that has been seeking out the enemy to disrupt any plans for renewed attacks on Saigon. The battlefield was only a mile from where 147 North Vietnamese soldiers were killed in fighting Monday and Tuesday.

While the fighting phase was a disappointment to the U.S. Command, the troops seized 2½ tons of enemy supplies.

An enemy defector led 25th Division soldiers to two munitions stockpiles five miles south of the battlefield. The cache included 53 carbines, 150 mortar shells, 450 hand grenades, 300 Chinese-made Claymore mines, about 8,000 rounds of AK47 rifle ammunition and other supplies.

In the northern part of the country, U.S. 101st Airborne Division troops four miles east of Hue uncovered 20 tons of rice—enough to feed a 500-man enemy battalion for about 1½ months.

South Vietnamese troops found another 20 tons of rice along with a number of weapons and ammunition 18 miles north of Hue.

Housing fight brings action, reaction

Village tax suit continues

TOBYHANNA — Residents of Tobyhanna Village and officials at Tobyhanna Army Depot are relying on the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) to force the owner of the Wherry Housing Project to correct what were termed deplorable conditions at the complex.

(Related story, page 1)

Members of the Tobyhanna Self-Improvement Association have petitioned the FHA to force Dr. Gariel Elias of Warminster, owner of the project, to maintain the 200 apartment complex.

The Association, in a petition which was forwarded to the FHA, cited what they termed a "partial list" of 15 complaints by tenants regarding conditions at the Tobyhanna Village.

Many of the complaints of conditions in the petition are shown in the accompanying pictures.

Col. Paul R. Poulin, commander of Tobyhanna Army Depot, said Friday he attended a meeting with military officials in Washington, D.C. last week to discuss the situation.

"Since I've taken command, I have been made aware of these undesirable conditions and their prolonged nature, both from inspections conducted by the Depot and Federal Housing Administration," Col. Poulin said.

He added, "I am aware of the inadequate maintenance from my own observation."

Col. Poulin explained that military officials at the Depot conduct regular inspections since the housing complex is located on federal property and used by Depot employees.

Deyanice Monroe, president of the newly organized Tobyhanna Village Self-Improvement Association, said the conditions have existed at the Wherry Housing Project for several years.

Monroe, who moved into the housing complex in 1954, said he was among 15 tenants in 1966 who withheld rent at that time due to the condition of the project.

Monroe said "Many of the things we complained about two years ago haven't been fixed yet."

There are a total 200 apartments in the complex with 144 families. The Self-Improvement Association has 62 members.

Rent at the Tobyhanna Village ranges from $75 to $130 per month.

Leamon Jarmon, secretary-treasurer of the Self-Improvement Assn., said the group had begun making several repairs. Jarmon said the Assn. members cleaned out basements which were filled with boxes and refuse; mowed lawn areas; placed 48 tons of topsoil on lawns and seeded them and re-constructed drying lines.

James P. Marsh, Stroudsburg attorney who is representing Dr. Elias, said Thursday night that a meeting was held following the threatened rent strike by tenants.

Marsh said both federal and military officials, in addition to some tenants, had reached an agreement to work out solutions.

He added that since that time the problem had not been brought before him.

Marsh is currently involved in court litigation involving alleged delinquent taxes for Tobyhanna Village.

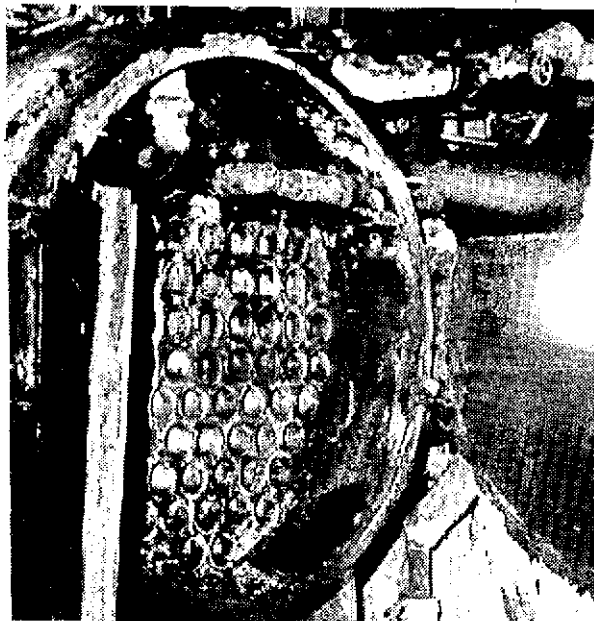

Monroe County Treasurer Thomas Joyce several months ago placed Tobyhanna Village on tax sale for alleged back payment of taxes.

Marsh obtained an order from the Federal District Court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania in Scranton to stop the tax sale.

Marsh said the current litigation is for taxes dating back to 1964. He explained the tax matter is quite involved since the Wherry Housing Act allows owners to set off amounts in taxes and due to federal agency jurisdictions.

Marsh said an agreement had been reached with solicitors for the various local taxing bodies to accept a certification from the Secretary of Defense indicating how much revenue has been received by local taxing districts from the federal government.

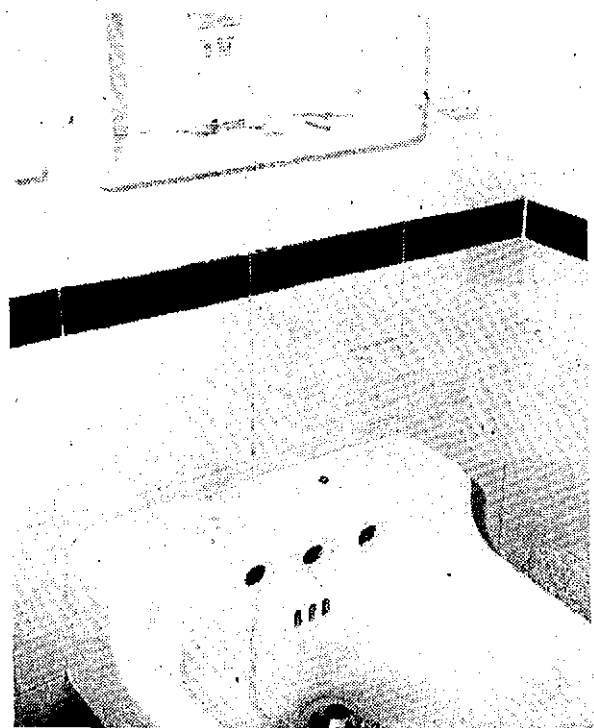

The amounts received from the federal government, Marsh explained, will be set off from the taxes due. If it works out that the Tobyhanna Village owes more, the amounts will be paid.

MILFORD — The media specialist trainees of Pike, Monroe and Northampton counties were visitors in the Milford area on Tuesday. The group, known as Project Eleven, since it embraces eleven persons, visited the Pinchot Institute for Conservation Studies during their trip to Pike County.

The visit to the Institute was arranged by Ronald McMaster, who is the member of the trainee group from Pike County and Delaware Valley High School.

The educators were greeted at the former Pinchot home by Dr. Matthew J. Brennan, Director of the Institute, and his new assistant, Arthur Kennedy. A conference or discussion period ensued, lasting over an hour, during which the facilities of the Institute, including the ever growing research library, were offered to the group to assist them in either their training program or in their work in their respective schools or school districts.

Among the eleven trainees are John Kupiec of Stroudsburg and Clyde Messinger of East Stroudsburg.

shock the early riser and make one fully aware that summer is a fast receding memory.

The Halloween party spirit will soon be in the air. The local police forces are hoping the spirit will be confined to parties and the parties will be confined to activities that do not degenerate into hooliganism.

Authority seeks new school bids

MILFORD — The Delaware Valley School directors at their regular monthly meeting Thursday night approved a request to the Delaware Valley School Authority to advertise for bids for construction of a new high school.

This move was taken after permission was granted to have water flow tests taken of two wells currently on the property.

A new well for use of the new high school building will be drilled, however.

The board also passed a resolution to create the position of a middle-grade school principal. This position will be filled during the 1969-70 school term in order that he may participate in all plans and arrangements for the conversion of the present high school building into a middle grade school for the 1970-71 school term.

Salary raises were voted to two employees in the office of the district superintendent. Mrs. Sandra Kriel was granted an additional $240 bringing her annual salary to $2,840. Mrs. Carolyn Purdue will receive an annual increase of $150 bringing her salary to $3,750. A daily increase of 55 cents was voted to all cafeteria workers since their work-day has been lengthened this term.

The resignation of Manuel Alvarez, seventh and eighth grade science teacher was accepted. He resigned for reasons of health.

It was voted to have the district solicitor, Sydney L. Krawitz, work out an agreement with the Matamoras borough council to rent airport property in that borough for use in driver training instruction. The property will be leased for an annual fee of one dollar.

A group of PTA members from Matamoras lead by the president, Mrs. Herman David, attended the meeting to thank the board for the progress being made at the Matamoras Elementary School.

Recommendation good news

Recommendation for "downtown action" in Stroudsburg should be a more than welcome suggestion for residents throughout the area.

Let's face facts—it's long overdue.

It is our opinion that the modernization of the three localities suggested by the Stroudsburg Planning Commission will actually give the entire borough a "new look" and in reality aid the businessman.

Parallel parking, changing curb lines, beautification, installation of street furniture and signs and installation of a special downtown motif would help the businessman, resident and visitor alike.

Because the venture would be beneficial to so many people, it is of the utmost importance that the Stroudsburg Planning Commission receive cooperation from all angles.

This cooperation should be instigated by the businessmen, who will probably gain the biggest benefit. A strong agreement between businessmen and planners could make this the most ambitious venture ever undertaken in the borough and could bring about a bigger project than even the three-phase plan made public this week.

According to present plans, the three-phase operation calls for two model blocks, the first being bounded by Seventh, Monroe, Eighth and Main Sts., and the second by Seventh, Ann, Eighth and Main Sts. The third phase includes a study on the feasibility of converting Seventh St., between Main and Monroe, into a mall.

Add these improvements to the long awaited building of a motel-hotel-type building on the site now occupied by the Penn-Stroud Hotel, and the scope of the project becomes tremendous.

Plans also call for "bays" to be constructed along the streets, where shrubbery would be planted or sculpture placed.

The entire picture lends much hope for the orderly growth of Stroudsburg during the next five years. But, the plan can become a reality only through cooperation.

Normal pattern returns

Detroit continues its World Series victory celebration into the weekend, while the remainder of the United States settles down to a normal pattern of life, after the "Fighting Tigers" came off the turf to whip the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday.

Down three games to one, the Tigers fought back to dethrone the Cardinals as the number one baseball team in the world by winning three straight games, the final over the believed invincible Bob Gibson.

The Tigers have brought joy to Detroit, a town torn by a series of race riots and strikes over the past two years. The Tigers brought grief to the Motor City one year ago by bowing to the Boston Red Sox in the final week of the season. But, after Thursday, all has been forgiven.

Right now the Detroit Tigers serve as an example to every athletic team and every person for that matter. The Tigers are an example to everyone who has ever faced what appeared to be unbeatable odds.

But, as they have said in baseball for so many years, the game is never over until the last out is registered. It is the same story in life. Even though the cause may seem hopeless, there is always a way, if the will is strong.

The Tigers are more famous and richer for a never-say-die attitude, the type we all could and should adopt.

But, now that the fall classic has passed into history, we can all look forward to a normal week, free from dashes to radio and television sets to check the course of the game during business hours and free from the office pool.

But, in Detroit—Oh, that aching head!

Husband's Revenge

The little man came home unexpectedly to find his wife in the arms of another man.

Seizing the man's umbrella, he raised it high above his head with both hands and brought it down sharply over his knee. It broke in two.

"There!" cried the little man. "Now I hope it rains."

Hot Off The Big Board

There was a time when an old boy came in from the country and got to hanging around, listening to the market quotations.

He got interested and bought some wheat. The price went down. He had to sell at a loss.

So he bought some oats. He lost on that.

He bought rye. Lost again.

"Why don't you try cotton?" one of the regulars suggested to him.

He wouldn't consider it.

"I don't know anything about cotton," he explained.

Nixon's other goals

WITH RICHARD NIXON — Why is Richard Nixon—so far ahead that few see it possible for him to lose—free from dangerous overconfidence?

There's a reason: winning is not his only goal. He wants not only to be elected, but to be able to govern. He wants to be not just another president, but to be an effective president at a time of great national peril.

This is why his impelling, driving objective is to win the presidency with as large a popular vote as he can get—as near to a majority as possible with a three-way election in a divided nation.

He knows he needs a substantial popular vote if his administration is to make real headway in uniting the country and in doing what needs to be done.

Nixon is not fooling himself. The way things are now going, he seriously doubts he can get more than 45 per cent of the popular vote. Harry Truman couldn't get a majority in 1948 against Thomas Dewey, Strom Thurmond and Henry Wallace. JFK couldn't get it against Nixon alone. But Nixon isn't giving up. It stands as his overriding goal and it serves to dispel temptation to overconfidence.

It is evident that he can get near to a majority popular vote only if he can find a way—and none are doing much good—to reduce the George Wallace third-party vote in both the south and the north. There is no evidence that Wallace is fading, as many thought he would after the conventions. He is not only holding his own but is gaining slightly. As of now, Nixon sees Wallace getting some 20 per cent of the vote Nov. 3.

Nixon is gravely concerned about the impact of a big Wallace vote. His anxiety is not that Wallace has any chance of becoming president. His real concern is the effect which a swelling Wallace vote could have on the problem of uniting the nation after the election.

This is why Nixon is beginning to shape the strongest possible case he can make to persuade Wallace supporters to return to the mainstream of presidential politics. The case which Nixon intends to expand and use more and more includes these main arguments:

The Wallace campaign, unless it is significantly rejected by the American people, can make it painfully difficult, if not impossible, to govern the country effectively.

If Wallace wins a substantial vote, it will mean to millions of Negro citizens that the American people have turned against them.

At the very least the effect will be to widen and deepen the divisions and hostilities which are already dangerously great in the United States. At worst, it could mean mounting civil violence bordering on civil war.

Nixon is quite aware that he has no chance with the hard-core Wallace supporters, but he believes that there are many who may want to think twice.

Before they use their Wallace vote to continue the Johnson-Humphrey policies.

Before they decide to vote Wallace and Gen. LeMay in charge of the foreign policy of the United States.

Nixon sees Wallace as a dangerous negativist. He agrees that he and Wallace are against some of the same things, but his contention is that Wallace's whole campaign is simply "against" while his campaign is "for" changes to make things better.

His deep conviction is that Wallace is in no way pointing the road to law and order but to lawlessness and disorder.

He intends to warn against Wallace with greater vehemence and vigor—in the south and in the north.

Nixon believes he is as conservative a president as the nation will elect at this time in history and he does not want to see the conservative cause thwarted by a third-party movement which he sees dividing the conservatives and keeping the political left in office.

'In God We Trust'

WASHINGTON — When I came into the house last night my wife was sitting at the kitchen table and comparing two $20 bills. (Must be slipping; ordinarily, I never let her have big money like that.) Her question: How come it says "In God We Trust" on new bills and it doesn't say that on old ones?

Very simple, I told her. In the old days our money was actually backed by gold or silver and was worth something, so we could trust in the United States Treasury. Now, we don't have nearly enough gold or silver to back all the money we've printed and, therefore, it's worth much less than it once was.

"So," I concluded, snatching the money from her, "since we can no longer trust the Treasury Department, we must put all our trust in the Lord."

Vice presidential candidate Spiro T. Agnew, who has made a few flubs himself, was the victim of one the other day when he was introduced to speak at the National Press Club.

Ray Cromley, club president, told members how fortunate they were to get Agnew and, without thinking, added, "and future speakers will be even better."

Rep. Samuel L. Devine (R., Ohio) tells about the doctor who gave a banker his yearly physical checkup and reported to the banker that he was "sound as a dollar." The banker fainted.

Will somebody explain to me the sign in the men's washroom at Pilgrim Heights, Mass., maintained by the government as part of the National Seashore Park?

It says: "Washing with soap, cleaning teeth and shaving PROHIBITED." Yet the wash basins are equipped with hot water and furnished with soap!

reports how the English language Brazil Herald in Rio de Janeiro announced the purchase of a new press:

"If part of today's copy looks neater, nicer and better printed, it is because it was printed on our fabulous high-speed web offset press. If part of today's copy doesn't look neater, nicer and better printed, it is because no one really knows how to run our fabulous high-speed offset press yet!"

In a GOP attack entitled, "Eight Years of It," there are these notes:

"It now requires 47 pieces of paper to hire one government employee and about the same number to get one off the payroll."

"Two years ago the administration said it was going to do something about all this paper work. About 55 paper-work surveys were started. Press releases were issued promptly by many government agencies about what was to be done to reduce paper work. Sample examples: The Office of Economic Opportunity issued a five-page press release on saving paper work. Not to be outdone, the Health, Education & Welfare Department issued a six-page release on paper-work reduction."

Sarcasm from Rep. Jack Edwards (R., Ala.): "Perhaps one reason city folks are better off than farmers is because the government hasn't 'helped' city folks as much as it has farmers."

Prisoner interest

WASHINGTON — The late entry of retired Airforce General Curtis LeMay into the political campaign as the running mate of George Wallace could bring about a long needed national discussion of the fate of American prisoners in Vietnam.

A group of returning airforce officers, whose buddies are among the more than 400 United States prisoners of war in North Vietnam, has privately appealed to Gen. LeMay to call on the presidential candidates to say what they will do to obtain the release of these "forgotten men."

Gen. LeMay was told that deep concern is growing throughout the military services over the curtain of official silence that has been dropped around these brave Americans.

The Vietnam veterans pointed out to LeMay that the fate of these captured airmen has been completely ignored in the Paris Peace talks and by the three major presidential candidates — Richard Nixon, Hubert Humphrey, and George Wallace.

No reference

Nowhere in the Vietnam pronouncements of the candidates, it was stated, can one find a single reference to the airmen concerned about their well being.

Even more disturbing to these military officers is that no public official or the candidates have proposed that the release of the American prisoners be given top priority in the Paris negotiations as during the Korean War talks.

A confidential memorandum presented to the former airforce chief of staff cites how former presidents Truman and Eisenhower kept faith with captured Americans by making their release the first order of business in the Korean negotiations.

In sharp contrast, the memorandum noted, U.S. negotiators haven't once tried in the Paris talks to force the North Vietnamese to discuss the release of the airmen. In fact, the negotiators have no instructions to put the prisoner issue on the agenda.

Feeble efforts

For reasons no official will reveal, it has been a policy of President Johnson not to give top priority to the prisoner issue.

Instead of linking their release to the cease-fire talks as Truman and Eisenhower successfully did, Johnson has sought a separate conference under International Red Cross auspices — and this has been merely to assure proper treatment of all prisoners of war.

The Hanoi government has shown no interest in this feeble Johnson proposal. The North Vietnamese have flatly rejected all requests that the captured fliers be granted the protection of the 1949 Geneva Convention on prisoners, to which North Vietnam is a signatory. Hanoi has also refused to deal with the International Red Cross.

Aides report that Gen. LeMay is eager to publicly discuss the prisoner of war issue to build up public interest in their plight. However, they add, the former airforce chief of staff is leaving a final decision on what should be done to Wallace.

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Navy making moves

John A. Goldsmith

WASHINGTON — The Navy, with active assistance from the Pentagon high command, is anxiously trying to head off a Senate-imposed slowdown on transition from the proven Polaris missile to the untried Poseidon for missile-firing submarines.

Navy spokesmen are looking to the House for action to overturn a recommendation of the Senate's powerful Appropriations Committee. The committee, wary of the Navy's previous missile failures, wants proof of Poseidon's admittedly high potential.

The controversy, aired in the committee's closed-door hearings, has already produced some of the sharpest criticism ever leveled against United States weapons development. Targets were the three "T's" of Navy air defense, the Talos, Tartar and Terrier anti-aircraft missiles.

Now at issue is the Pentagon's $5.1 billion, eight-year program for converting 31 of the 41-ship Polaris submarine fleet to the Poseidon missile. The larger Poseidon would let the missile-firing subs take full advantage of MIRV—warheads which include several separately targeted nuclear weapons.

In its $72 billion money bill, now pending in Congress, the Pentagon included $1.4 billion for Poseidon, more than half a billion of it to finance conversion of six Polaris submarines in addition to two conversions funded a year ago.

The House approved that program, but the Senate Committee cut the conversion outlay by nearly $280 million. The committee called for two additional Polaris Poseidon conversions, for a total of four. In its official report, the committee candidly told the Senate:

"It is the view of the committee that the Navy should proceed with caution in this program until the flight test program of the Poseidon missile has clearly established its reliability."

Lobbying time

The big defense appropriations bill is one of the major items of unfinished congressional business. Under normal circumstances the bill, once passed by the House, would have been rushed to final passage. (In theory it should have been approved by the beginning of the bookkeeping year, July 1.)

The Navy got some lobbying time, however, when senate leaders decided to push ahead instead with the controversial nomination of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to be chief justice. The Navy brass has taken full advantage of the delay.

Right to be tired

SINCE my husband was told that I have a psychosomatic condition I find he has lost patience when I complain that I feel weak or tired. I feel as though I have been stigmatized rather than helped by tagging the term psychosomatic on my complaints.

Mrs. J. A., Rhode Island
Dear Mrs. A.: I agree completely with you in believing that it is unfair to pass off a patient's complaints as being psychological in origin only because the symptoms may be vague. Many women complain of listlessness, lack of energy and fatigue without any obvious evidence of physical disease.

I have never ceased to wonder how so many young women are able to get through a day of activity, handling the chores of the house, the physical needs of the children and the thousand demands made on their energy. In fact, the "tired beat" man who comes home from the office after a hard day's work that included a two-hour martini lunch, probably does only one hundredth as much as the little woman who is then expected to be bright, cheerful and charming after a day of marathon running.

Some of my patients exhaust me when they describe what they do in a single day. A football player or a baseball pitcher gets a four-day rest after expending less energy than you probably do.

A psychological explanation or, as you call it, a psychosomatic one, must never be made until every physical examination has been "checked out." Unless this is done carefully with a complete blood study, the real reason for your weakness may be overlooked.

It is true that severely distressed people can complain of weakness and lack of energy and fatigue.

Let us suppose that in your case it has been found there is no anemia or menstrual difficulty or chronic chest condition to account for your tiredness. Let us further suppose that it can be shown you are under tremendous physical and emotional pressure by the chores of running a household. It is no shame or stigma in this hectic world of ours to be so pressured that psychological symptoms become evident.

There is no law that says that you too cannot arbitrarily say to the children and even to your husband: "This is my time to rest." They cannot assume that you have limitless energy and will constantly be available to supply their personal needs. Somewhere along the line you must replenish, with what I consider to be an "emotional antibiotic," the physical and emotional reserve that is so important to carry on another day's work.

Quite a bit, actually. In fact, there's a lot doing at a Pennsylvania arts festival. There's drama, and dancing, and painting, and singing, and playing, and all the things that make a festival—festive. And there's almost always one to visit somewhere in the summertime. And thousands of people do. Because our arts festival, like everything else in the state, are vital, knitted-together happenings that mirror the exciting living that is part of Pennsylvania.

But if you think we're painting too rosy a picture, come for a visit. You might change your tune.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

The number of luncheons, dinners and suppers I consume during the opening club season in October would make me fat as a pig if it weren't that I had to run so fast to make all of them. Well, almost all.

And for me it pays off beyond the pleasant company and the company food. Getting an over-all view of the route each club is planning to follow to reach their goals saves a lot of explanations in the course of the club year.

Attaching new names to new faces makes them easier to decipher in the hand-written memos, whether my own or a chairman's.

And each year there seem to be more new faces to remember, pointing up the fact that we are growing. There was a time when three or four new members a year was considered good; now in many groups 20 new members a year are commonplace.

The only reason the individual clubs don't outgrow their meeting places is because there are also many more resignations than there used to be: people moving out of the area, having new babies, going back to college or back to work when their children are grown, or maybe just finding that they've scheduled their time so tightly that something had to give before they had room to breathe.

Completing the week, however, is a luncheon where the faces will all be familiar, where nobody will have to take notes and the past will seem as close as the present is the luncheon for Frances Ostrom, visiting here after too many years absence. And that's a comfortable way to have it for a change.

Ann Landers

Mrs. exec on the line

Dear Ann: I work in an office for four high-powered business executives. Their wives call on the average of four times a day. This means, roughly, 16 calls. The nature of their calls is so ridiculous I can hardly believe my ears. One wants to know if he prefers lamb or veal for supper. The next one is asking if she should wear the straight hair wig or the curly one. Another idiot asks if she should pay the carpenter with cash or by check. Just now the president's wife called to find out if she should let their 5-year-old son for saying, "I hate you" or should she take away his dessert and television privileges.

Is there some nice way to tell these women their calls are a pain in the ankle?

GRANDMOTHER FOLEY

Dear Gran: When the pain becomes sufficiently bothersome to the executives they will let the Little Women know. Until then, keep quiet and do what you are paid to do.

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago I married a boy of whom my parents disapproved. Rock and I were married four years and had a little girl. I divorced Rock but we still saw each other from time to time. When he left the country for two years I missed him very much and so did our little girl.

Now that Rock is back I'm

Dear Ver: She didn't call me

sure I am in love with him as I never was before. My parents are driving me crazy. They say he is still a no good bum and if I remarry him I will be sorry. My father insists you can't change the spots on a leopard. True or not?

UNDEICED LADY
IN LEXINGTON

Dear Lady: True — you can't change the spots on a leopard. But I didn't get the impression you were considering remarrying a leopard. I thought it was a man. People can and do change. If you and Rock want to remarry, the decision should be yours and yours alone.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's sister was married to a wonderful man. They had three attractive children. The oldest is now eight. Two years ago my sister-in-law's "in-discretions" became so widely known that her husband divorced her. The man she was running with promptly moved into her home. She says she would marry him but she doesn't want to give up the alimony which is "beautiful." If she didn't have the children I'd look the other way, but under the circumstances I think she is a tramp. What would you call her?

Columbia receives area man's estate

STROUDSBURG — It was revealed Wednesday that the late Frank Diehl Fackenthal, Buck Hill Falls, has bequeathed a large portion of his estate to Columbia University, New York City, to establish a fund for scholarships and fellowships for deserving students.

Fackenthal, a former president of Columbia, spent most of his active life at the university from which he graduated in 1906.

His personal estate has been estimated at $500,000 and his real estate holdings have been estimated at $70,000.

Fackenthal's request was that all stocks, bonds, securities, insurance policies and all accumulations and disposable funds with the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association be granted to the Trustees of Columbia University for the establishment of a fund.

The fund will be known as the "Fackenthal Fund," the income of which will be divided into four equal parts.

Three of the parts will be awarded as scholarships in Columbia and will be known as the "Michael and Jane Diehl Fackenthal Scholarships."

Fackenthal requested that preference for the awarding of the scholarships be given first to students resident in Pennsylvania and second to students resident in Virginia.

The fourth remaining part is to be awarded in fellowships and scholarships to be known as the "B. F. Fackenthal Jr. Fellowships" or the "B.F. Fackenthal Jr. Scholarships."

These grants are to be awarded in the graduate and professional schools of Columbia, preferably to graduates of Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, where he served as a member of the board of trustees.

In addition to the amount left to Columbia, Fackenthal also granted $5,000 to Franklin and Marshall College; Bernard College; Teachers College; Columbia University Press, of which he was a former president; and the Union Cemetery at Heliopolis.

He also left grants of $2,500 to each of the following organizations: International House, N.Y.; New York Congregational Home for the Aged, Brooklyn; and the Cadman Memorial Congregational Society of Brooklyn.

$1,000 grants were left to the Educational Foundation of the University Club in New York City; Columbia University Club Foundation; the Century Association in New York City; the Brooklyn Home for Children; and the Apollo Club of Brooklyn.

Fackenthal granted $1,000 to the alumni funds of each of the following colleges and universities: New York University; Princeton, Rutgers; Syracuse; Trinity College; and Union College.

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.
It is true that in most hands, the play by both sides is virtually automatic and the result is more or less preordained.

But in some deals there is a considerable amount of parry and thrust, and the outcome depends on how well each side acquires itself during the play. Here is an extreme case of this type.

South got to four spades and West led the ten of diamonds. Had East won with the ace, South would have had an easy time making the contract. He would have lost only a spade, a diamond and a club.

But East read the lead as a doubleton rather than a singleton, and ducked. South won with the jack, and realizing that West would probably score a secondary trump trick if an overruffing position in diamonds developed, cashed the A-K of hearts, discarding the queen of diamonds, and led a third heart on which he discarded the king of diamonds.

West won and returned the deuce of diamonds. South ruffed and once more recognized the danger of leading a trump to force out the ace. Thus, had he led the king of spades at this point, West could defeat him by taking the ace and leading the ace and another club. Stuck in dummy, South would be unable to get out without yielding a trick to West's ten of trumps.

So, instead, South led a club towards dummy at trick six. Had West gone up with the ace and returned a club, declarer would have come home by forcing out the ace of spades.

But West played low on the club lead, won the trump return from dummy with the ace, returned a low club to partner's jack, and then could not be stopped from defeating the contract when East returned a diamond. His ten of spades — which South had striven so hard to neutralize — finally came into its own.

4-Hers learn art of stamp unsticking

TANNERSVILLE — Members of the Tannersville 4-H Stamp Club devoted their time in "learning by doing" the correct ways of removing stamps from paper during their recent meeting at the home of club leader, John Montgomery.

At the next meeting 7 p.m. Oct. 18, instruction will be given in sorting and cataloging stamps of the world.

Any boy or girl interested in joining the 4-H Stamp Club may contact the Agriculture Extension Office, Post Office Building, Stroudsburg.

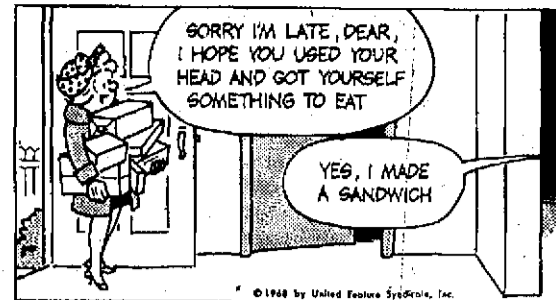

No bidders on project

EAST STROUDSBURG — King Beers, executive director of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority recently revealed that no bids had been received for the Federal Street improvement project.

According to Beers, the authority will now contact the Borough of East Stroudsburg to see if the borough will do the job. Beers said he anticipates the acceptance of the job by borough officials and the improvement will probably begin in the Spring, 1969.

Beers said no bids were received probably because it is a relatively small job plus the fact that it is getting rather late in the year for road construction.

JACK O'BRIAN'S

Voice of Broadway

Paul Newman's politics-buffing contains no secret for his pals, who say he'd like to run for Conn. U.S. senator about 10 years from now. The Pearl Buck Foundation has a bulletin ready. Erstwhile kid actress Margaret O'Brien's due here for a N.Y. play she hopes.

Recently wed young television actress is annoyed because the groom decided to stay out of work. Gregory Peck got 50 cents an hour at the '39 World's Fair as a Barker; his "The Stalking Moon" movie pay & percentage will be $500,000.

Romy Schneider assured Columbia Pix she'd be enchanted to make a publicity tour of the U.S. for her "Odley" film—just for expenses: which include husband, baby, nurse, hairdresser and two relatives. Liz, Zsa etc.—eat your hearts out: Britain's Queen Liz' personal jewelry is worth more than $20 million. In town for his "Hot Millions" rave notices, Peter Ustinov said about Rome's totally relaxing flavor: "The only one who works there is the Pope."

The Lambs Club waited until Jack Dempsey was 73 to make him guest of honor at one of its "Lamb-bastings" next week. Nightclub comics' political jokes are less often aimed at the top two candidates: mostly Agnew and Wallace. Liza Minnelli said at Gallagher's she won't sing a single note in her starting Paramount film "The Sterile Cuckoo"; good thinking.

High-fee fashion photog Bert Stern installed a high-speed elevator in his five-story Manhattan studios; elevator cost $4,000, but Stern (who gets up to $2,000 an hour for fashion flashing) says he'll save enough lens time in a year to more than pay it off. Broadway press agents represent all manner theatricals from shows to nightclubs; and so Broadway press agents Dick Weaver and Merle DeBusky wound up in adjoining rooms in the hospital for Joint Diseases.

"The April Fools" is Myrna Loy's 103rd flick. Forrest Tucker almost a permanent Chicago resident via longrun legit shows (he opens there soon in the hilarious "Plaza Suite" with Betty Garrett); also wants to open a huge Windy City nightclub. Fred Astaire refuses all television-talk-show pleas; keeps his feet flying and not in his mouth that way. Oldest nightclub still in existence? Le Bal des Anglais in Paris, founded 1943.

Midtown restaurant needed a dishwasher, phoned the union, which rarely has one available but suggested calling a welfare office: the person who answered told the restaurant man, "I'm sorry but we can't ask our clients to take such a menial job."

The St. Regis hired one of the five finest chefs in the world — Ernest Imhof. Whose surname reminds old vaudeville fans of a very funny long-gone comedian, Roger Imhof, whose billing was hardly related to the delicacies Ernest earnestly creates: "The Pest House" was Roger's act's subtitle.

Stroudsburg borough police investigate two accidents

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Borough Police Friday investigated a pair of two-car accidents on W. Main St. They reported no injuries in either crash.

At 10 a.m. Harry Eggert of 12 N. Fourth St., Stroudsburg, parked his pickup truck in front of Kellogg's Insurance building.

Eggert told police he had set the hand brake but somehow it released.

Eggert's truck drifted across the intersection at 10th St. and crashed into the parked car of Richard Levanduski of East Stroudsburg R.D. 2.

Police said there was no damage to the pickup and estimated damage to the Levanduski car at $81.

At 2:10 p.m. a car driven by Elmer Remy of 61 N. 10th St., which was traveling north on S. 10th St. collided with a car operated by Howard K. Canfield Jr. of Stroudsburg R.D. 2, which was going west on Main St.

Police said Remy crossed the highway through an opening in traffic that had been stopped for the light at Ninth and Main Streets and in so doing collided with the Canfield vehicle.

Police estimate damage at $200 to the Remy car and $300 to the Canfield vehicle.

Chest drive halfway to goal

STROUDSBURG — The 1968 Monroe County Community Chest Campaign started downhill Thursday afternoon when drive officials reported that the campaign had gone past the halfway mark in the organization's quest for $132,756.

Meeting at the Penn Stroud Hotel, Campaign chairman Jack Parker announced that $67,395 had been contributed thus far in the '68 drive.

Parker announced that the Advanced Gifts totaled $57,654 and the under-$25 contributions had reached $9,740.

Jesse R.S. Flory, co-chairman of the Industrial Division, a segment of the Advanced Gifts, reported that industry and labor had contributed $16,584. Flory said, "However, we expect the bulk of the Industrial Division's campaign to be reported within the next week to 10 days."

Parker urged the workers to "push hard the next month to meet the goal of $132,756." He asked each volunteer "to make a special effort to get the campaign over the top."

The county's campaign for the Chest will get under way soon with workers canvassing the townships and boroughs in the county.

Ethel West, executive director of the Community Chest, said, "We need a little push to keep up the fine pace we have established the first month of the campaign. Now is not the time to lag. It is the period, however, when everyone must give forth so that 11 agencies may realize the full benefits of the Community Chest."

The next report meeting is scheduled for next Thursday at 4 p.m. at the Penn Stroud Hotel.

Worldwide Church believes answers in Bible

CANADENSIS — The United States and Great Britain in Prophecy? The common market? A United States of Europe? The answers to these questions can all be found in the Bible by writing to the Worldwide Church of God, Pasadena, Calif.

This was the thinking of one church member Friday when he waited outside the Canadensis laundromat for his wife to finish a bundle of clothes.

A Negro, he could find no discrepancy in Garner Ted Armstrong branding the late Martin Luther King as "a racist."

Armstrong, the church's executive vice president, made the charge during his Thursday afternoon sermon at the convention site of the Feast of Tabernacle in Mount Pocono.

Agrees with leader

The man agreed with Armstrong that King was fomenting violence by preaching non-violence. Neither did he take issue with Armstrong's veiled attack on the Catholic Church when in two separate instances during Thursday's sermon Armstrong ridiculed one of the church's sacred prayers and likened moral decay to "Clerics sweeping their long robes along the dirty stones of cathedrals."

The member believes that through the Bible God has revealed to Worldwide Church of God members to cast out certain false churches, among them the Catholic Church.

A prominent New York musician before he found what he believes is the true God through the revelations of the Bible as interpreted by the Worldwide Church, he now believes that the Kingdom of God will come to pass on earth.

New Germany?

He forecast a new Germany rising out of the ashes of the Third Reich, a Germany with a leader more powerful and more diabolical than Hitler, who would lead the new super state nation to battle against England and the United States.

After conquering these two countries, the member said,

Germany itself will face destruction by the invasion of the Mongol hordes, presumably Russia and China.

For the source of these prophecies he quoted Daniel, Chapter 11: Revelations, Chapters 17 and 20. If a non-member wanted to know current world happenings the member suggested Matthew, Chapter 20.

The member said his church does not interpret the Bible. The Bible interprets itself, he said.

He said that the current worldwide church membership is about 55,000 and that before long the church will become an ever increasing source of hatred from other churches and peoples in the world.

Another member revealed that the reason why the church doesn't believe in Christmas is because it is a pagan holiday and that Christ couldn't have been born on Dec. 25 due to the harshness of the weather conditions in which there would have been no shepherds tending their sheep in the fields.

Barrett to attempt youth plan

BUCK HILL FALLS — Barrett Township Supervisors Friday night promised cooperation and assistance to representatives of the Pocono Mountain Rotary Club who wish to see a civic center built at High Acres Park, north of Canadensis.

James McGuire, chairman for the Rotary Club, explained, "There is a lack of space for youth groups to meet year round." The local Rotary Club will contribute toward efforts for construction of facilities and asked cooperation and assistance from the supervisors for this project.

"We plan fund raising in the area to a necessary amount and will explore the possibilities of matching funds from the state or federal governments. This building would eventually go into use for civic organizations also," McGuire concluded.

Roger Lindsey, chairman of the supervisors, said, "You definitely have the cooperation and approval of the supervisors. I advise a meeting with the park commissions to discuss the plan for High Acres. I will give all the cooperation I possibly can. Call on me for anything I can do to help."

This discussion followed a report from Mrs. Lewis Lewis that the condition of High Acres was "disgraceful" and that clean up and patrolling ought to be increased.

Chief of Police William Everett reported acts of vandalism at the park. McGuire noted that such construction as projected would do much to reduce vandalism.

Supervisors set Halloween celebrations for Thursday, Oct. 30, between 5 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. It is recommended that parents accompany small children.

Supervisors gave permission for auxiliary police to patrol the township during the Halloween season to cut down on vandalism. Auxiliary police will also aid traffic control for the Barrett Halloween Parade, Saturday, Oct. 27.

Approval was granted to repay a $35,000 loan to Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. from tax money.

In other business, supervisors will draw specifications for a new police car; specifications for a five-yard packer, and look into the purchase of a high pressure washer for the garbage truck.

The supervisors will meet Tuesday with representatives from the Department of Highways to discuss replacement of traffic signals in Canadensis and addition of signals at the intersections of Routes 390 and 191 in Mount Pocono and Buck Hill Falls.

New York judge asks races to work together for cause

By BOB GROFF
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Interracial Council was charged Friday night not to wait until signs of protest were waved in Stroudsburg to do something about helping the minority groups within the city to gain respectability and responsibility as first class citizens.

The charge was made not only to the council, but to the power structure of the county and to all of its citizens by Judge Albert R. Murray, Criminal Court of New York City, who was the council's guest speaker at a meeting at the Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

Panel members

Joining Judge Murray was a panel which consisted of Monroe County Judge Arlington W. Williams, East Stroudsburg Mayor Thomas L. Kistler, Mary, Miss Louise and Miss Elizabeth Judge, all of Scranton.

Also two sons, Donald Judge, Pocono Pines, and James A. Judge, Allentown; 13 grandchildren; four sisters, Mrs. Alice Donovan, Scranton; Miss Mary, Miss Louise and Miss Elizabeth Judge, all of Scranton.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Lantern Funeral Home, East Stroudsburg.

200 pay tribute

4-H program honors membership

EAST STROUDSBURG — More than 200 members, leaders, guests and friends of 4-H were present Friday night to honor a 4-H member for outstanding development of citizenship qualities, Miss Sonia Melnikoff, recipient of the Robert A. Jensen Citizenship Award.

There were six nominations for the engraved scroll award presented by the Arthur Jensen turbances in New York City.

Throughout his talk, Judge Murray urged his listeners to prevent racial problems before they get started. He said,

"What you in Stroudsburg have to do is look at these other places (Bedford-Stuyvesant, New York, Philadelphia and other big trouble spots) to see that it doesn't happen here."

Judge Murray said that he doesn't have any solution to the problems which now face our large cities, but the best way to fight the problem of racial trouble is to see that the problem just doesn't happen within a community.

"If I emphasize that I am a Negro and you emphasize that you are white," he said, "We are going to get further apart. If each of you, both black and white, would assume the responsibility of developing America, and put America first, then the problems that we have would not likely develop in places where they don't now exist."

Don't feel sorry

He went on further to say strongly, "Don't feel sorry for the Negro. Don't do anything on a hand out basis. This will only anger him. Help him, but do so in the form of giving him work. Make him feel like a first class citizen. Make him develop pride."

In his closing remarks, Judge Murray said that "I hope that this group will not take those Negroes who preach hate and violence as speaking for all Negroes."

He asked that "You as citizens, support the Negroes who are trying to move forward."

"We are in need of help," Judge Murray said, "You once held us down. Now help us to rise. Teach us how."

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Mexico's moment of glory—one of its first on the world stage—comes at approximately 1:30 p.m. (3:30 p.m. EDT) Saturday when President Gustavo Diaz proclaims open the 1968 Olympic Games in a colorful ceremony to be beamed by television to every corner of the earth.

A crowd of 100,000 will be jammed into the University of Mexico stadium, a modernistic saucer which is a perfect blend of the new and old Mexico, for the ceremony. It's a moment Mexico has been anticipating for five work-filled years since it was awarded the Games. Tickets for the program, pegged at 250 pesos ($20.99), all were sold a long time ago. There have been reports in recent days of scalpers charging as much as 500 pesos ($40.99) and getting it.

The capital city, thrown into confusion a week ago when at least 33 persons were killed in street violence, was at peace as the start of the Games drew close. Mexicans appeared to have cast aside their cares of the day and seemed interested only in the big show, which in effect makes Mexico City the sports capital of the world.

Fernando Garza, President Ordaz' press secretary, said there will be only normal police activity in the city on Saturday, and there will be no army activity except for the usual honor guard which accompanies the president when he makes a public appearance. "The people will be in charge of keeping order," Garza said. There will be several firsts for the ceremony, which will include a few remarks by Pedro Ramirez Vasquez, the tireless president of the Mexican Olympic organizing committee, and Avery Brundage, the 81-year-old Chicago millionaire who on Thursday was re-elected president of the International Olympic Committee.

Both talks come near the start of the scheduled two hour, 10-minute program and President Diaz has said his official proclamation won't take more than 30 seconds, following a prescribed formula.

The weather forecast calls for clear and sunny skies with tropical storm Rebecca far away over the Pacific and absolutely no threat to ruin the show.

A total of 7,639 athletes from 110 nations then will march into the stadium with Greece, where the Olympic Games were first founded in 1263 B.C., leading the parade and Mexico, as host nation, last. All other team delegations will parade into the stadium in alphabetical order, as their names are spelled in Spanish. (Thus the United States "Estados Unidos" in Spanish, will march in order of the letter "E").

Both the total number of athletes and nations are records for the games. Two other firsts, one for the Games and one for the United States, will become official when Enriquez Basilio, a 20-year-old farmer's daughter from the small community of Mexicali, carries the Olympic torch into the stadium and Mrs. Janice York Romary, a Wood-Land Hills, Calif., mother of two, carries the American flag at the head of the delegation.

"I could not believe it, I thought it was a big joke," said Mrs. Basilio when she learned of her selection to carry the torch on its final leg of a trip that started many months ago from Mt. Olympus in Greece.

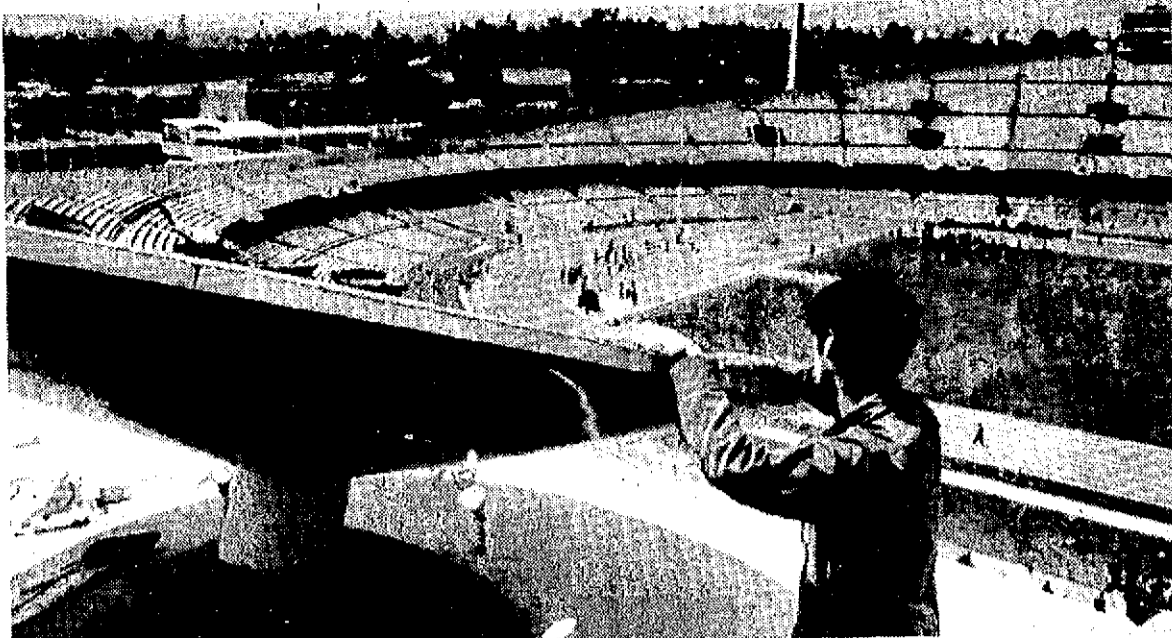

"It came as a shock to me," said Mrs. Romary, who is 40 and has been in five other Olympic Games, concerning her selection as flagbearer. "You never can quite get used to being in an Olympic parade. I always weep a little only this time I won't have a tissue to rely on. Both of my hands will be occupied."

After the parade of delegations, the longest part of the ceremony, the Olympic flag will be raised atop the stadium and the big moment will follow when Miss Basilio brings in the torch, always one of the most impressive parts of the program.

The Olympic oath, which binds athletes of all nations in a common bond of brotherhood—at least in theory—the releasing of 10,000 pigeons, symbols of peace, and thousands of balloons will cap the show, which will be televised to the United States and Canada and which will be beamed elsewhere around the world via television satellites.

(Television in the United States and Canada is via American Broadcasting Company).

On the eve of the big show, nervousness and tension gripped most athletes. Few cared to practice for the competition which gets underway around Olympic village in colorful native costumes. It was a day of waiting for the most part—a day leading up to the greatest athletic carnival of them all.

Bruins defeat Detroit

BOSTON (UPI)—Veteran goalie Eddie Johnston made Phil Esposito's second-period goal stand up Friday night to give the Boston Bruins a 4-2 season opening victory over the Detroit Red Wings.

Ageless Gordie Howe scored one Detroit goal, the 689th of his career, and assisted on the other, scored by linemate Frank Mahovlich in the National Hockey League opener before a sellout Boston Garden crowd.

Fred Stanfield and Eddie Westfall had scored in the first period for the Bruins and defenseman Dallas Smith hit an open Red Wing cage with 11 seconds remaining to account for the final margin.

Biggest hand of the night went to Bruin defenseman Bobby Orr, whose second trip up the ice in a matter of moments set up Esposito's eventual winner and earned him an assist that in turn drew an ovation.

Referee Vern Buffey was injured in the first three minutes of the opener in a collision with Boston's Fred Stanfield and was forced to leave the game. He was replaced by linesman Pat Sheller in a game which flared into fistfights in the second and third periods.

Palmer bows to Charles by 7-6 score

WENTWORTH, England (UPI)—Arnold Palmer was routed from the World Match Play Golf Championship Friday by New Zealand's Bob Charles in the semifinals—but the big news was an epic match between Gary Player of South Africa and Tony Jacklin of England.

Palmer lost big—by a 7 and 6 margin—to the smooth-swinging southpaw. Player, meanwhile, had to hang on against a birdie onslaught by Jacklin to gain a tie after 36 holes. Darkness prevented them from going on, and the match will be resumed Saturday. The winner meets Charles for the title and $12,000 first prize.

Conditions were atrocious Friday and the 6,997-yard "Burma Road" course, already soggy through days of rain, was turned into a quagmire by a torrential downpour midway through the matches.

Charles, rated the world's best left-handed golfer, handed Palmer the biggest thrashing of his illustrious career and was 7-up after the first 18. The American's putting was the main factor—he just couldn't get going.

"I drove well," Arnie said, "and although it cost me some shots at times, it was only because I allowed my putting to demoralize me."

Jacklin, the darling of British golf, put in a tremendous late charge with a spurt of six birdies to catch Player.

Warriors seek 10th straight win against winless Cheyney

STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State tries to protect its one-game lead in the Pennsylvania State Conference's Eastern Division this afternoon when it takes on winless Cheyney.

In other action involving area teams this afternoon Stroudsburg travels to Pen Argyl; Bangor visits Wilson and Pleasant Valley travels to Northwestern. Tonight East Stroudsburg entertains Lehigh at 8 o'clock while Sunday Plus X is at Phillipsburg Catholic.

ESSC will also be trying to extend its winning streak to 10 games (including six games from last season).

The Warriors' running game will be hampered by the loss of fullback John Pitzer and halfback Jim Waite. Pitzer, who will be missing his first varsity game in three years, has a sprained knee and will be used only in an emergency. Waite, who has a jammed neck, will also be held out at the start. The new faces in the backfield will be John Tironi at fullback and Augie Grant at halfback. The only other change occurs on defense where Carl Wolfe, Ed Hawrylo and Jerry Clymer will make up the middle of the five-man rush. Bill Forte will be the front-line replacement. Offensively Cheyney will open with Greg Ogle (181) and Vaughn Spencer (135) at ends; Alonzo Covert (240) and Greg Harris (220), Alan Hollis (210) and Steve Bell (215) at guards and Barrie Trent (220) at center. Ronald Hollis (155), who has completed 50 per cent of his passes, will open at quarterback with Bob Brown (195) at fullback and Ron Scott (190) and Adam Henfro (165) at the halfbacks.

On defense Tom Bryan (205) and John Lay (185) are the terminals; Jim Curtiss (215) and Charles Kosola (200) the tackles, Covert and Harold Woods (240) the guards, Alan Hollis, Gene Nance (177) and Fred Page (192) are linebackers with Bob Price (175) and Ogle deep.

Stroudsburg, which is in danger of setting a all-time school losing record of 14 games, may still be without junior fullback Mel Abel. The 180-pounder is still slowed by shin splints and although he's feeling better he has not run one week.

Head coach Andy Silcock also reported that end Ken Brown suffered a broken ankle in last week's defeat to Palmerton and is probably through for the season.

Silcock refuses to get down on his young squad. He said "they're giving everything they have every game and despite their size they're not getting pushed into the ground."

With Abel still doubtful it means that Dave Shook, Ed Strunk and Gary Owens will be the running backs. On defense Strunk will move from

Mountie booters in 5th tie

BETHLEHEM — Stroudsburg outshot Liberty 13-4 Friday but had to settle for its fifth tie of the season in East Penn Soccer League action, 0-0.

Liberty still holds down first place with 15 points followed by Freedom with 12, and Stroudsburg, Easton and Palisades, all with 11.

In the other games Friday, Hellertown flushed Freedom, 6-1, Easton blanked Southern Lehigh, 1-0, and Wilson edged Palisades, 2-1.

The tough Mountie defense held the Hurricane without a shot in the first half. Meanwhile the visitors had several close shots including one by Mark Brown that hit the right hand side of the net and just bounced away.

Mark Bloss returned the ensuing free kick to the Colts 45 but the Cardinals threat died after reaching the Marian 25.

Marian was forced to punt but were offside on the kick and the Cardinals took the penalty. This time the pass from center went over the punter's head and PM took over on the Marian 18.

Four plays later the Cardinals lead was increased to 8-0. Nate Reddicks did all the work in the drive as he ran to the seven on first down and three plays later circled left end for his fourth touchdown in the last two

Second period
Marian got back into the game on the second play of the second period as Pat McMullen picked off a swing pass from Bill Bodine intended for Reddicks and scampered 38 yards untouched with 11 minutes left in the second period.

Minutes later Tom Andrejic fielded a Bobby Boyd punt on the Marian 40 and raced to the Cardinal five before Boyd tackled him from behind. On the next play Steve Mangano went up the middle for the TD with 8:05 left in the first half.

Late in the second period Jim Ballon raced 40 yards on a reverse to give PM a first on the Marian 28. Aided by a face mask penalty the Cards moved to the eight only to have Clark fumble and the Colts recover.

Still later in the half the Cardinals had a touchdown called back because of a back in motion penalty and eventually lost the ball on downs on the Marian two.

Twins name Billy Martin, Giants Clyde King as managers

San Francisco Giants president Horace Stoneham, right, and Clyde King are all smiles during press conference Friday where it was announced King will be manager of the Giants for 1969. King, who managed the Phoenix Giants of the Pacific Coast League this past season, succeeds Herman Franks, who retired at the end of the season.

Sets sights on getting early runs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Mild mannered, bespectacled Clyde King replaced grumpy Herman Franks as manager of the San Francisco Giants Friday and set his sights on getting the club some early runs.

"I think we have good pitching but we need a run or two earlier in the game," said the 43-year-old King who is making his debut as a big league pilot. "Too many games have gone into the sixth inning with this team scoreless."

King, who managed the Giants' Phoenix farm club to a third place finish last season in the Pacific Coast League's Eastern Division, was signed to a one year contract. Salary terms were not disclosed but King was believed to receive about $40,000.

Franks, independently wealthy, had managed the Giants since 1965, finishing second each season. As far back as last July 11, the oft-belliecase pilot said he would quit after the 1968 campaign if the Giants didn't win the pennant. They finished the season nine games out of first place.

King becomes the fifth man to manage the Giants since they shifted to San Francisco from New York after the 1957 season. They moved west when Bill Rigney was manager. Rigney was fired in June, 1960, with the club in second place and it finished fifth under interim pilot Tom Sheehan.

Alvin Dark then managed the club from 1961 through 1963, winning the National League pennant in 1962. Franks took over immediately after the '64 campaign ended with the Giants in fourth spot.

"I've managed some of the toughest players around, including Leon Wagner and Dick Stuart, and never had any problems," King told a news conference when asked if he expected trouble from some Giants regarded as prima donnas.

The new skipper also said he was seeking to develop a philosophy "somewhere between the extremes of John McGraw and Walter Alston."

"I've also played for managers like Charlie Dressen, Burl Shotton, and Leo Durocher," King noted. "And, I picked up a little bit of managing philosophy from each of them."

There was no announcement on the fate of the 1968 coaching staff. They included Wes Westrum, Larry Jansen, Charley Fox, and Harry (Peanuts) Lowrey.

King said he wished to dispel the feeling that such giant pitchers as Gaylord Perry and Ray Sadecki failed to get enough runs when they were on the mound.

"I think the Giant pitching is tremendous and I hope its gets even better," King declared while seated with club president Horace Stoneham in front of a glare of television lights. "We'll steal bases and employ the hit and run more to go for the early scores."

As a major league relief specialist, King posted a 32-25 record in the National League.

Billy Martin, fiery former New York Yankee star and player, coach and minor league manager for the Minnesota Twins, was named the new Twins' manager Friday to succeed Cal Ermer. Twins' president Calvin Griffith said, "He can be another Casey Stengel." Martin contemplates the upcoming season of the Twins after the club dropped to a seventh place finish in this year's American League race.

Hope he can become another Casey Stengel

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI)—Club President Calvin Griffith Friday promoted Billy Martin to field manager of the Minnesota Twins with a hope that "he can be another Casey Stengel."

Martin, 40, a peppery second baseman of the New York Yankees in their happier days and a seven-year veteran of the Twins organization, was named to replace Cal Ermer, who was fired 11 days ago.

"With his inspirational winning attitude we feel Martin will get our ball club back on the right track," Griffith said.

Martin was given a one-year contract. His salary was not disclosed, but Griffith said, "It's a little more than Billy asked."

A Twins spokesman said Martin will be "higher paid than most managers" and "only three or four Twins players will make more."

For Martin, it was the culmination of a boyhood dream, he said.

"This is the kind of challenge I've always loved," he said.

Martin has been known for his temper in addition to his competitive spirit and desire to win, and Griffith said he took this into account.

Martin, who came here as a player in 1961, then was a scout and coach before going to the Denver farm team as manager for the last half of the 1968 season, was thrown out of eight games on the Denver job.

"I would have to be assured that Billy has learned to control his temper," Griffith said a few days ago in discussing the managership.

Martin said he's certain he can do a good job of handling the club but "I've always had a temper, I think it's nothing to be ashamed of, and if you know how to use it, it can help."

"Temper is something the good Lord gave me," he said, "and I can't just throw it out the window."

Martin and Griffith said they will discuss the naming of coaches at the expansion draft in Boston next week and announce their names shortly thereafter.

Martin joined the Yankees in 1950 and played for them until he was traded to Kansas City in 1957. He played with Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Milwaukee before closing out his playing career with the Twins after 1961.

He became a Twins scout in 1962 and coach in 1964, then went to Denver as manager in mid-season this year.

"I liked the ability he showed at Denver," Griffith said. "He could be another Casey Stengel. He had the respect of Stengel and all the other Yankees when he played there."

Denver, disappointing early in the 1968 season, came alive under Martin's direction and finished fourth, one game over .500.

Cardinals obtain Pinson to replace retiring Maris

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals obtained Vada Pinson from the Cincinnati Reds to replace retiring Roger Maris in a trade Friday that cost the Cardinals two young prospects.

In another trade, General Manager Bing Devine gave up backup catcher John Edwards to Houston for righthanded pitcher Dave Giusti.

Devine relinquished outfielder-first baseman Bob Tolan and pitcher Wayne Granger for the 30-year-old Pinson, who promptly said he had a hunch he would be traded.

The trades also involved 25-year-old Tom Smith, a Cardinal minor league catcher, to Houston, which sent its catcher Dave Adlesh to St. Louis.

The move behind the Tolan-Pinson swap was to find an experienced player to replace the now retired outfielder Roger Maris.

Tolan is 23, seven years younger than Pinson, who had refused to play a game last June out of respect for the slain New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Pinson said he had hoped to be traded to San Francisco, "because that's close to home." He lives in Oakland, Calif.

Pinson said, "I never dreamed I'd go to the Cardinals that's even better—a first-class club. I hope I can fit in."

Tolan had been somewhat disappointed in that he did not get to play in more games for the Cardinals. He is considered one of the fastest men on the bases, and is a nephew of former Olympic Sprint Champ Eddie Tolan.

In addition to Tolan, the Cardinals had to surrender lanky righthander Granger, who appeared in 34 games as a reliever and posted a 4-2 record with a 2.25 earned run average.

Granger appeared as a relief pitcher in the World Series against the Detroit Tigers and didn't allow a hit in two innings, although he appeared "nervous" and hit two batters.

Edwards was aware that he was the backup to catcher Tim McCarver, and appeared content in his role. Manager Red Schoendienst took advantage of Edwards' playing ability, and several times used him in the cleanup batting position during first baseman Orlando Cepeda's hitting slump.

Rams hope to close coffin on Packers

By PETE ALFANO
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers have a habit of not cooperating at their own funeral.

Once again the so-called experts, who pick the Packers to win it all in August but then call them too old when Green Bay loses a game during the season, are ready to close the coffin on the world champions Sunday when the unbeaten Los Angeles Rams (4-0) meet the "Pack" (2-2) in Milwaukee.

The last time they met was in the National Football League's Western Conference title game and Green Bay won 28-7 despite the fact the Rams had lost only one game the entire season.

The rest is history as the Packers went on to their third straight NFL crown and second successive "Super Bowl" triumph over the AFL champs.

The Rams lead the league in virtually every defensive category and the Packers, who finally got untracked when they bombed Atlanta 38-7 last Sunday, will need another spirited performance if they are to beat Los Angeles this time. The game is rated a tossup.

In other Sunday action Baltimore is 7 1/2 points over the Forty Niners at San Francisco, the Cowboys are 19 over the Eagles in Dallas, New York is a two-touchdown choice over winless Atlanta, Minnesota is 7 1/2 over New Orleans, the Browns are three over St. Louis in Cleveland, Detroit is three over the Bears in Chicago and the Redskins are 10 over the Steelers at Washington.

The Ram defense has been awesome, allowing the fewest points — 38 — and the fewest yards gained both passing and rushing, while compiling a 12 game winning streak for regular season games dating back to last year.

Roman Gabriel (55-of-101 for 969 yards and seven TD's) supplies the air game while Dick Bass (252 yards) and Tommy Mason (198 yards) carry the brunt of the running attack.

The Packers erupted for a 470-yard total offense performance against the Falcons with Donny Anderson gaining 101 yards rushing and seldom used Claudis James snaring two touchdown passes.

John Unitas is expected to see some action but Earl Morrall, (60-of-101 for 988 yards and 10 TD's) will start for the Colts as Baltimore seeks its 13th straight win over San Francisco.

Clifton McNeil, with 22 receptions is the league leader, but his effectiveness may be cut down if John Brodie of the Forty Niners cannot play on Sunday, due to a bruised right arm suffered last week.

The Cowboys lead the NFL in rushing, passing and total offense although their attack may suffer somewhat now that the versatile Dan Reeves is out for the season with a knee injury. Lee Shy (89 yards in 10 carries) will be the likely replacement for Dallas.

Norm Snead is back for the Eagles and should help their sagging offense which has scored only 65 points this season.

Fran Tarkenton, the league's top passer with 46-of-80 for 803 yards and eight TD's, should have a field day against his old coach Norm Van Brocklin and the Falcons. Atlanta has allowed the opposition to complete 75 per cent of their passes and Tarkenton may not find it necessary to scramble, a habit that Van Brocklin found annoying at Minnesota.

The Vikings have lost Gary Cuozzo but picked up King Hill to back up starter Joe Kapp at quarterback. The Saints have showed an ability to score with Billy Killebrew hitting Dan Abramowitz with regularity.

Raiders favored to tie win record

By WILLIAM VERIGAN

UPI Sports Writer

The San Diego Chargers try to preserve sole possession of a seven-year-old American Football League record and keep their Western Division title hopes alive Sunday when they visit the unbeaten Oakland Raiders.

Oakland has won 14 consecutive AFL games, just one short of the league record set by the Chargers over the 1960-61 seasons. The Raiders, 4-0 after beating Boston 41-10 last weekend, are nine-point favorites to equal the record against San Diego, but they might have to do it without some key offensive personnel.

Listed as doubtful for the Raiders are halfback Hewitt Dixon, the league's top runner with 463 yards on 81 carries, and receivers Warren Wells and Billy Cannon. Wells is the No. 2 pass catcher for Oakland behind Fred Biletnikoff, and he is expected to play despite a bruised thigh.

San Diego's John Hadl passed for 300 yards, but was intercepted three times as the Chargers lost to the New York Jets 23-20 last weekend. Hadl passed for two TDs to Gary Garrison and one to Lance Alworth, who has caught 21 passes this season to share the league high with New York's George Sauer.

In its fourth game of the season, Oakland tried its first around-end play and it worked so well that Wells went all the way for a TD. Daryle Lamonica has completed 50 of 116 passes for 828 yards while Hadl has hit on 63 of 124 for 1,040 yards.

In other games, the Kansas City Chiefs (4-1) meet the Cincinnati Bengals (2-3) in a game that is "off the board." The Boston Patriots (2-2) are a one-point choice over the Houston Oilers (1-4), the New York Jets (3-1) are picked by three TDs over the Denver Broncos (1-3) and the Miami Dolphins (1-3) are favored by six over the Buffalo Bills (1-4).

Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson leads the AFL in passing with 50 completions in 85 tries for 668 yards, and the Chiefs also have the No. 2 rusher in rookie Robert Holmes, who has gained 284 yards on only 39 carries. Mike Garrett returned to the lineup in Kansas City's 18-7 victory over Buffalo last week provided the Chiefs with a double running threat.

The surprising Cincinnati Bengals led Denver into the closing minutes before losing 10-7. Fullback Tom Smiley probably will miss Sunday's game with a sprained knee.

Old wooden church now 'country home'

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — An edifice with a nearly 100-year history in East Stroudsburg belongs to a man whose country is making history, but whose people are losing their own history and identity.

George Weyr, a tall, proud, grey-haired man lost his history and that of his family when he was forced to abandon his family estate just outside Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The 63-year-old man, now an American citizen, a connoisseur of art, fine architecture and the proud historic achievements of man to his fellow man, has regained some part of man's history by purchasing the old St. Matthew's Catholic Church in East Stroudsburg.

The church located just above the hill by Brown and Courtland

Streets, was constructed in 1870. The wooden edifice was dedicated Aug. 28, 1870.

Weyr, who left his native Czechoslovakia in 1961 and escaped imprisonment, purchased the old wooden structure Dec. 30, 1967 from Wood W. Woolsey.

Associated with Coin Galleries, New York City, the Czechoslovakian, who worked for Radio Free Europe upon leaving his homeland, spends weekends in his remodeled "country home."

A Catholic, Weyr said he attempted to keep within the church theme in his remodeling task of the old church.

His renovations include construction of a balcony, which resembles a choir loft; removing the false ceiling and providing a high-ceilinged "congregation area" which seated 85 persons when the church opened.

The large congregation area now serves as the living room which is adorned in the center by a hand-carved table made in Munich, Germany. The table is made with an Indian theme and contains a rising sun at each end.

A collector of items from Indian culture, Weyr has numerous Indian baskets, sculpture and rugs.

The church is the history of man and Weyr's life is enveloped in man's history —

Ivan Sebnacak, a close relative of George Weyr, relaxes in the large living room of the converted St. Matthew's Church. The table with its rising sun was hand-made in Munich, Germany.

both his which is almost forgotten, the Mexican Mucala Indian, who is almost forgotten and the long history which is portrayed in his collection of coins.

A storage area of the church has been converted by Weyr into a kitchen and lavatory. A back room has been converted into a combination study-bedroom and also another lavatory.

On the walls of all rooms, the aging gentleman has hung vestiges of civilizations. Along the staircase leading to the balcony are the Knights of Malta; hung on the walls are various pictures of his Czechoslovakian home, St. Matthew, etchings and a framed Pennsylvania currency piece with the legend, "To counterfeit is death."

Weyr, who currently lives in New York City, hopes to retire at the renovated church.

His brother, Francious, who has been in the United States for eight years, is helping in the renovations.

The old church, which was replaced by the present St. Matthew's Church completed in 1934, is currently threatened with demolition.

The State Highway

Department recently announced plans to widen Brown Street from the bridge at the end of Crystal Street to the Interborough Bridge.

Previously, a Highway Department official said the church would be demolished, but in a letter to Weyr, said the department does not have the power since the right-of-way needed for the project will have to be acquired by the borough.

Local officials to date have not received any construction design plans from the Highway Department to determine officially the boundaries for the street widening.

Moravian pastor wed astronaut

CANADENSIS — Rev. James F. Gross, pastor of the Moravian Church, Canadensis, has more than a casual interest in the crew of the Apollo Seven Space craft, which was launched Friday.

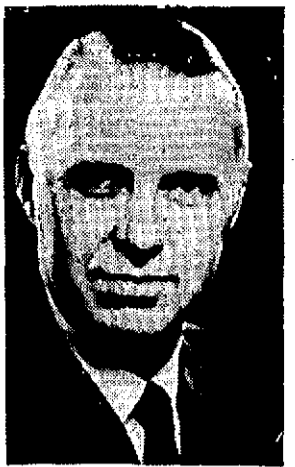

Gross performed the marriage of Air Force Major Donn F. Eisele, Senior Pilot, who will occupy the center couch during the flight, between Walter Shirra and Walter Cunningham.

The wedding took place Dec. 28, 1952, in the John Heckewelder Memorial Moravian Church at Gnadenthutten, Ohio, where Rev. Gross was pastor from 1944 to 1958.

Donn is married to the former Miss Harriet Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Delbert "Dike" Hamilton. Harriet's mother, Clara Mae Hamilton, is full-time office secretary at the church.

Gross remembers that the church was decorated with red Christmas poinsettias and Harriet's bridesmaid and attendants were dressed in red velvet gowns.

The Eiseles had four children but one died. Melinda, 13, was born at Rapid City, S. D.; Donn, 12, was born at Tripoli on the northwest coast of Africa; Matthew was born at Dayton, Ohio, and Jon, three, at Houston, Tex. Matt, six, died recently of leukemia.

Blessed Are The Grateful

I'd want to 'commemorate' 'em,

The whole endurin' flock

When the frost is on the punkin

And the fodder's in the shock.—James Whitcomb Riley

The homespun philosophy used by the Hoosier Poet in this poem strikingly expresses the gratitude and reverent thanksgiving of Americans for a bountiful harvest. This feeling has persisted since the Pilgrims held their first Thanksgiving.

A deep sense of gratitude is worthy of being cultivated. It prevents one from becoming self-centered. Churchgoers are, more often than not, grateful people. Attendance at the Church, best able to serve you, can be the means of building this fine attribute in your character.

National Newspaperboy Day.. October 12 1968

A Salute to our BUSINESS BOYS . . . the young men who deliver your daily newspaper

by Robert Widmer, Circulation Manager and Rodney Michael, Home Delivery Supervisor
THE POCONO RECORD

We in the newspaper business work for either the most efficient business in the world . . . or the craziest!

How many other businesses can you think of that manufacture a brand new product every day, throw it away the next day and start all over? How many sophisticated corporations do you know in this electronic age that use high speed computers, provide their people with over a half-million dollars worth of the latest equipment . . . and then turn their brand-new, beautiful product over to a 12-year-old boy to sell and distribute for them?

That's the newspaper business! A world unto itself inhabited by people with boundless energy and a great sense of community service.

And you want to know something? It works. Knowledgeable, dedicated newspaper people make it work . . . with the help of a "secret ingredient" that's a newspaper exclusive. The newspaperboy.

For more years than we can remember The Pocono Record has daily reaffirmed its faith in the unique "Little Merchant" and "Junior Independent Merchant" plan for newspaperboys.

It takes two daily shifts of craftsmen and journalism professionals to produce this newspaper but the last big job—its distribution and delivery to the home—is superbly handled day after day in all weather by the faithful newspaperboy.

The independent newspaperboy plan is unique in many ways. Where else can a 12-to 15-year-old boy be awarded a franchise to operate his own business?

Newspaperboys are not employees of the newspaper. They are free and independent agents who buy their papers from the newspaper at a wholesale rate and, in turn, sell and deliver them to their customers at the retail rate.

Some newspaperboys are such good salesmen their routes have to be split in half as much as three times. And they earn more than money. They get a sneak preview of what the responsibilities of manhood and breadwinner mean.

They learn that good service, a sense of responsibility and integrity bring many rewards. They learn that a promise is only good if it is kept.

But a boy who has been a newspaperboy tells it best. Chip Hall, is such a boy. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Hall, 606 Chestnut St., East Stroudsburg, he kept his two newspaper routes all through high school.

Last year he won The Pocono Record's top award: "Newspaper Boy of the Year." Last month he entered college to study engineering. His younger brother, Teddy, took over on big brother's route.

Here is what Chip says about his newspaperboy experience:

Dear Mr. Widmer,

Within the next few weeks I will have to start preparing to leave for college and I feel that I must give up my paper route. I will be attending Tri-State Engineering and Business College in Angola, Indiana. I will be enrolled in the General Engineering Course. I must truthfully say that I will never forget the fine relationship I have had with you and The Pocono Record in the past few years. I am sure that the experience I have gained from having a paper route will stay with me the rest of my life. I will be contacting you within the next few days with some suggested changes in Routes 208 and 208-A. I would like to give the major portion of my routes to my brother, Teddy. I am sure he will turn into a fine paperboy. In closing, I must say thank you for the most enjoyable and valuable experience in dealing with friends and neighbors I have had.

Yours Truly,

Stewart R. Hall Jr.
Stewart H. Hall, Jr.
(Chip)

During National Newspaper Week we take this opportunity to salute all our many newspaperboys throughout the Poconos . . . and the hundreds of young men (like Chip Hall) who used to deliver The Pocono Record. Chip is now in college. Before he left last month he called the Circulation Department to say goodbye . . . and order a student subscription to The Pocono Record!

Like the slogan says below: "Newspaper routes make a big difference in boys' lives." And in ours, too!
